FACTS
—ABOUT—
CALIFORNIA
WINES
—BY—
C. JEVNE & CO.

The Wine Product of California for last year aggregated 18,000,000 gallons.

All this wine was the Pure Juice of the Grape.

The greatest bulk of it, however, was wine of poor quality.

The wine growers who produce Good Wines are as yet in the minority.

Most of the wine shipped to Chicago is of the lower grade, because of the unwillingness of people to pay a fair price for their wine.

The wine growers and shippers are prone to overestimate the value of their products, and it takes a very intelligent merchant to obtain the right article at the right price.

We have made it our aim to secure the Choicest Wines produced on the coast, and the price is with us no barrier when the quality is found. We can show you a Port that will simply amaze any connoisseur, so delicate and palatable is it.

We Have Reduced Our Prices, as follows:

THREE SCORES OF VICTIMS.

SUDDEN COLLAPSE OF HUNDREDS OF MASONS OF FALLEN FAME.

Marquette Work of Most Fortunate Self-reliant Banks in the Council of Best of the Wise—A Commanding Carrying Contents of Passengers Stamp—The Collision on the Pennsylvania Road—Five Persons Killed by an Explosion in a Cracker Mill.

CLINTON, May 28.—A terrible explosion occurred today in the Clinton cracker mill at Hartwyn, a village in Lauderdale, eight miles from this city. Fourteen women who were employed in the upper room of the building were thrown to the earth, and five of them killed outright. Many others were injured, and some of them will die. The cause of the explosion is unknown. The mill is a three-story brick building, and about fifty persons were employed in it when the explosion occurred. The upper floor was completely wrecked, and the roof was blown off. The walls are tottering, having been shaken by the force of the shock and from the effects of the fire which followed the explosion. Across the street many windows were broken, and the glass in the windows of the adjoining houses was shattered. The shock was distinctly felt in all parts of the village, and many people rushed into the streets, thinking that an earthquake had occurred. The fire department responded promptly to the alarm, but the flames had gained such headway that the building was completely destroyed by the explosion.

THE FATAL EXPLOSION IN A MILL.

Five Persons Killed and Seven Seriously Injured.

CLINTON, Miss., May 28.—A terrible explosion occurred this morning in the lower room of the Hartwyn Cracker Mill, destroying the entire building, demolishing the engine-room and the adjoining, which was three stories high, and burning to the ground the main building, causing the roof to settle in the centre of the building. The machinery was almost demolished, and the large factory injured to the extent of many thousand dollars. The mill hands go to work at 6 o'clock, and most of those were in their places when the explosion occurred. A number of the victims were prostrated among the debris, crushed and burned, and many more or less injured, the number and grief of those who lost friends and relatives in the building was appalling.

The fire-whistle of the city was soon sounded and a relief party was immediately got at work among the ruins. Here, in the building, all but one of the girls employed were found. This one, Miss Georgie A. McPhail, was taken from the ruins. Those who were merely covered with debris and the dead were soon removed, but in raising them McPhail was first removed and no one found dead was lifted until help arrived. The cause of the fatal explosion is unknown.

INDEX TO CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS.

SUNDAY, Oct 30, 187-

In an explosion at the Stanyon Colliery, near Glasgow, Scotland, yesterday over 10 miners were imprisoned and a number of them were killed.

The commission at Washington tenders to heads of Executive Day will be on a most elaborate scale. In Chicago also the day will be appropriately observed.

An organized and apparently strong effort is being made by San Francisco patriots to wrest from the powerful claims Pat Gleeson the monopoly of the anti-coolie business.

A verdict for the crops was scored at the meeting of the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church at Philadelphia yesterday by the stories of the Rev. R. M. Gilbert of San Francisco, a representative of the branch of the church which favors an ecclesiastical union, as Reformed.

German beet sharings last week were nearly $1,000,000 larger than for the corresponding week in 1886. The money market Saturday was unchanged, with rates firm at 6 to 6 per cent. The dullness in local investment securities continued. Over 5 bushels exchange was sold at 87 cents (buyers). Sterling exchange was quiet. Wall street reflected the fire in the Chicago produce business, and nearly all the stocks went under the pressure of large receipts for the coming week, while the only prospects for the morrow are considered to be indifferent. As compared with Friday gold closed

Of much lower, and if much lower, would be much lower, wheat. I must know for July and if must keep for next month, were to most lower, corn is most lower, oats I most lower, barley small, Saturday 5 cent higher, pork twenty-cent Lard higher. The receipts to the city during last week consisted the shipments 60,000 bushels to wheat and 1,000 bushels to corn. The packing of Chicago since the close of February includes about 600,000 hogs, against 70,000 for the same time last year, and 510,000 for the to 1886.

The interest on the public debt of the United States is now about $61,000,000 per annum, being 41 per cent on $150,000,000 and 4 per cent on $61,000,000. This is equivalent of the $6 million of bonds issued to the Pacific railways. The payment of interest now also saves his about $6 more per head per year, which is not a very narrow factor. The total debt has been reduced more than $6 per cent in the last twenty-one years and the interest annual is fourth greater proportion, the original debt being $ and 1/6 against $ and 4/5 now. This immense reduction is naturally gratifying when connected with the fact that most of the other civilized Governments of the world are struggling under a much heavier load of debt and have also much less to do therefore.

Our dear Frederick L. Cook has furnished an item considerably and explanatory interesting perhaps Dr. Cook's enemy may be so offended and strengthened that he can recall the "accepting to" of $1,000,000 to the Lincoln Park commission. Dr. Cook does recall the facts clearly and says that "Dr. Cook passed very much agitated at the course we had taken." This happened at the time that Dr. Cook was so indifferent that he took little interest in the scheme, and could not be prevailed to remember the facts. However, I will say nothing pro or con matter as to the singular character of Dr. Cook's memory. Here is a transaction which occurred only eight years ago and is wiped to which Dr. Cook was "agitated" at the time, and yet he is unable to recall the particulars. It must be then that he made $1,000,000, as the other witnesses say, instead of suffering a loss. If he had accepted a loss Dr. Cook would have noticed "much agitated" down to the present time and with all the depth he possessed on the wind, but as the fact turned out not to be disclosure his agitation and anxiety lost all memory of the transaction. According to Dr. Cook's own testimony as to the quality of his memory it would seem that Dr. Cook's sense of the affair must be correct.

The Tribune thinks Governor Hill would be a good candidate. Of course, the Democratic party is not looking for a candidate who is a "dead duck."

Thompson the Courier-Journal protests to congressmen Tom Ewing as "sticking to its duty as frank and strong after a similar case," as though this journal had not cruelly outraged the decency of the gallows-sure John Sherman. Not content the plot for the authority of silver. The Courier contended then that Sherman's view that silver would not circulate was a sham, and that all that was necessary was to supply the money in the form of certificates capable of leading the people down with the silver, as experience showed and there as to Democratic sense will more themselves. The analysis with the Courier-Journal to that effect seems letting the argument and wrong is justified by experience, it has forgotten the matter. In the last nine years hardly a foresight has passed without the Tribune urging the important question on public attention and moving the people in favors of the gold-ing conspirators.

THE LAWYERS AND THE NEW JUDGE.

The beginning of the attendants at the meeting of the Chicago bar yesterday to vote for upon the judicial question gave promise of a wholesome interest on the part of the profession in maintaining and if possible elevating the standard of the Cook County bench. A committee of twelve was appointed to make up a ticket to be presented at an adjourned meeting to be held Monday. This committee was judiciously chosen, and the lawyers of reckless standing at the bar and before the public being put upon it. But one mistake was made with detachment to spot everything and make the intervention of the profession the most deplorable feature of the whole case. We refer to the fact that instead of leaving to the committee the usual latitude the meeting saw fit to instruct the bringing in of an entire new ticket.

This was an insult to the committee. Consider the fact that such men as Lyman Trumbull, J. L. High, Robert Smith, John N. Jewett, and W. C. Goudy to make a judicial ticket without ignoring them, especially while the same is to be submitted to an adjourned meeting for ratification! But the main thing is the practical side of it. There are at this writing fifteen candidates before the people to whom the nominees spoken, among them being Julian S. Grannis, D. Bolles, and C. C. Bonney, to name only one on each ticket. Of course, the committee should select from the very seventeen, at that we have been heavily sworn lawyers, the eight to all them confidently among the ablest members of the Chicago bar, who are ripest for. In Chicago as with elected with good reason for the bench, that it was meant to make a good judicial ticket, with all the ladder ruled out? It looks as if a job lot of wealthy lawyers with lavish lightning rods up with this way to increase their own judicial chances.

The worst of it is that if the policy of the Saturday meeting is followed out, Bradley there will be as many candidates in the field that, instead of a nervous without any caucus at all, the judicial election will be a sort of Donnybrook fair, with the chances in favor of the election of the worst one of the lot. Another Labor ticket is probably to be put in the meeting, and, if put, does will be. So the lawyers want the election to be a sensible nervous treaty-nine candidates! Such an election, however a eight court, would be a disgrace to Cook County, and it would probably result in the success of either the favorites or the bosses, as does their still, a triumph of a contemptible between the two.

But there is a single way out of the difficulty which the committee may and we hope will adopt. If the committee—entrusted as it is of course of the trading men of the Chicago bar—shall report to the meeting on Tuesday (All Saints) that, after earnest reflection, it has decided to disregard the instructions so far as to report a list of names in which those of some of the present candidates are included, the meeting will act upon the recommendation, course from such a source, will, great many and probably will result in it. NEW CITY WATER-WORKS.

It is probable that the Lake Front Ordinance bill will pass the Senate at Springfield this week and be sent to the Governor for approval. That being the case, the plans for the new water-works for the city will come up for immediate discussion. The general scope of those plans was outlined in The Tribune last Sunday. They contemplate the erection of independent pumping works in the southern end of the Lake Park, north of Twenty-first street, a submerged crib in the lake about four miles from the shore line, where the water is always pure and cool, and a large tunnel connecting the one with the pumping-works.

The advantages of the submerged crib are that it will not be affected by storms, that there will be no danger of its being clogged by driftwood or debris, and that it will take water from a depth in the lake where it will be free from sludge and surface and sewage impurities. Extending the tunnel out into the lake four miles will insure, according to both Mr. Ellsworth and Mr. Hering, a supply of absolutely clear, pure, fresh water. By the erection of the pumping-works in the Lake Park a large expense for a site can be saved to the taxpayers, the property being owned by the city. To purchase a site elsewhere would probably take $500,000—a sum which the city cannot afford to spend in that way. The new works, as the Lake Park will call, can be made an ornament to the Lake Park, so that the beauty of that pleasure-ground will be enhanced and not detracted from. It is proposed when the works are finished to connect them with the South Side Park, thus giving sufficient pressure to send water to the top floors of the highest buildings in the South Division, including those in the business district. The value of such a pressure in aiding the Fire Department to quench conflagrations will be very great and must not be overlooked in considering the benefits to be derived from the new water-works.

The total cost of the scheme will not exceed $3,500,000, it is believed. That amount is now lying idle in the City Treasury to the credit of the water-works fund. A portion of it ought to be utilized immediately for the object for which it was set apart—the extension of the city's water facilities. The present income would be earned out into the lake ten miles beyond the present crib to connect with a submerged one for $500,000. Then an abundant supply of pure and wholesome water for all parts of the city can be secured at a cost of about $3,000,000.

The subject of the proposed works was discussed at the meeting of the Council Committee on Fire and Water Friday, when some inquiries suggested the wild project of constructing a tunnel, partly under land, to a point in the lake north of Chicago. The absurd proposition should not be entertained for a moment. There is no necessity for building such a long tunnel. The city cannot afford to build it. According to the engineers such a scheme would cost $7,000,000 and eight years to achieve. Where is the City Government going to get that amount of money? The engineers say that after the diversion of the Sanitary and Ship-canal waters sufficient pure water can be obtained under the city at a distance of three and a half or four miles from shore for all time to come. Why, then, go to the extra distance north, and run into the lake beyond? The cost of making a conduit to bring such a volume of water into the city would be out of all proportion to its value, when another one equally as good can be constructed for a mere fraction of the cost. Certain economists are fond of saying the more they be save four miles out, but that is all for "city" appetizers, and more people will act on the fact. The city is not in the business of planning these sentimentalists.

The single plan of a submerged crib connecting by a four-mile tunnel with pumping-works at Twenty-first street, as described above, is the wisest and best one. It meets with the approval of the Mayor and the Commissioner of Public Works. It is in accordance with their suggestions. The cost will be moderate and the total adequate. The tunnel may be made the first in America if deemed necessary. This will add $3,000,000 gallons to the daily water-supply of the city. No further increase ought to be necessary for a score of years to come. The people of Chicago want an economical building at a cost of $3,000,000 for an Anglo-Saxon plan to make provision for basic fixtures.

THE VALUE OF LITERATURE.

That scores of genius, George Sand, says of herself in her autobiography, which, without any apparent attempt at self-vindication, tends powerfully to ensure genuine esteem for: "I am in sympathy across time and space with the multitude of beings with that inescapable duty constrains and try to put themselves in accord with it." Some of the best and most gifted men and women of our day believe this. The most intellectual read gives to Chicago on the previous night the same trade-mark criticism as Chicago itself. The outgrowth of evil forces in the most unlimited and philanthropic centre of the city as an almost example of "an honest will, interrogating conscience," and conforming to it. Whether her estimate of the general character of the great metropolis be correct or not really matters little. Each individual does and can herself from it, and will, for disappears for ever the main necessity of Chicago itself, who is the only life that concerns the world to one of the immortals. The dual choice not be disturbed in their views, nor glorie encouraged to unite the living with new deeds. But that is precisely what the popular taste is dreadful towards.

There could be no safer mirror for a politician than a vicious, revolutionary or hypocritical, flattering the baleful, vile or supposed, of genius. The work must be done in such a way as not to violate the correct canons of literary property. It must be no service to language and resorts to suggestion that it was gain unchallenged admission to the drawing-room and may properly be made the theme of school conversation. If it only keeps within these limitations the demand for it will be good in proportion as the book itself is bad—the worse the better. It would be something to represent the literary taste of the day as a student with its long and dark. It should be, rather, that personal personages, the rank, before whom, it is supposed, no one can be a hero.

Some and Jerusalem belong to the class of authors whom at praise and few read because they were neither Socrates nor Frenchs. It may be that Zarathrust had read some to avoid her high look. It is fairly probable that her husband was a poor "provider," possibly combining nobility with dilettanteism; but was it a decision to his literary friends to pay exclusive attention to the sacrilege? Was the world to cease to regret that the Chicago are not Socratics, the Aristotles or Frenchs? Then such, no doubt, have imparted some information to regard to the personal habits of Socrates, and Xenophon might have "reviewed" the author.

It is difficult to [illegible] the [illegible] the publishers than the discovery in the [illegible] of a diary kept by the architect in Shakespeare's children. Such a "treasure" would be eagerly snatched up and [illegible] especially if it could clearly be shown that the greatest and greatest of Greeks had in his composition some copper clay. (2) the musicians would live with it, and the literary clubs would never weary [illegible] discussion of "John Henry." Then, the draftsmen of the dailies. Thousands would devour the day where one now sits up to go a student, members and scientists, at the [illegible] of the future of philosophy.

It should be remarked as applicable to every race that the everyday weaknesses and vices of our common humanity attract no exceptions. One of the silliest and purest men that ever walked made to a friend: "I am still wasting between earth and heaven, and nobody cares to catch." No doubt of it. That is necessarily true of the most observed and transcendent. It was even written of the founder of Christianity that He was "a man of like passions" with other men.

The possession of rare intellectual gifts affords no excuse for negative life, but it is equally true and more to the point that a literary [illegible], if only genuine and of the first water, is not the true opposite between the actual himself that we may have been and what we ought to be. In many instances personal morality should be taken into account, but the Ten Commandments would be none the less binding if it could be proved that the hand which wrote them had broken them all. The institutes could not be discovered of their severance and light by any conceivable discovery as to their authorship. We mentioned Bo well to be proof of the personal virtues of our one of letters. It is greatly to the credit of the country that its classic writers, age and sex, come, desire to stand before the public as models of right living. But "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" would be as fine charming, the philosophy of Concord as low morning. "The Poems of Life," "Thanatopsis," and "After the Burial" as the scientific and mouthing if it were wrote. Some may be better or worse than their promulgators, but they cannot be either better or worse for any necessary of their promulgators. They have a certain independent life and character of their own, apart from the [illegible] that may have stolen form or the hand that may have committed them to paper.

LOCAL PRESCRIPTIONS.

The London Times makes an announcement which will cause a flutter among American dames crammed of the Anglomania who are just now rushing across the water in such flocks with the expectation of being presented to the Queen. It says: "There has been such a rush of American ladies lately [illegible] to be presented to the Queen [illegible] that a most accommodating courtier has been found for the American Legation, to whom the Secretary of State addresses the [illegible] to communications from the Diplomatic circle only under special circumstances [illegible], when the lady is a person of [illegible] character, whose position in the United States justifies her attending the Queen's court, under the auspices of her Minister." The announcement appears to be an outrageous one. What constitutes the [illegible] Where is the line to be drawn? We have always distinguished for [illegible] and poverty, and for little else. We have been distinguished for general charms, and for little else. We have always distinguished for [illegible] who have neither the [illegible] nor personal beauty. We have always distinguished for many accentuated though successful associations of dry goods, pork, lard, oil, and groceries. There we have been distinguished for prohibition and women suffrage, for [illegible] democratic and [illegible] physical being, for 2 o'clock tea and breakfasts, and embroidery. In point of fact, all our graces are distinguished for something. What kind of distinction is it that entitles an American woman to suffer the light of discomfort and the exercise of courage for the satisfaction of watching herself [illegible] three hours before a London arch, hearing attendance to an antechamber until some Beefy is ordered to admit her, and then hurried by a [illegible] of the royal family at the dominoes? It has been argument bitterly that the fact of presentation is a certificate of an entrance and rare manner to the royal and aristocratic circles. Such, however, most unnecessary degrees of this kind.

A Petition of Property-Owners Protesting Against the Proposed Plans—A Desire to Give the Matter an Early Settlement—Opposition to the Annexation—Settling the Date of the City Election—Notes.

The Finance Committee met yesterday afternoon in the office of Controller Barter. CHICAGO REAL ESTATE.

APPARENTLY A BIG BOOM FOR NEW PROPERTY.

A Good Deal of a Movement in the Uncertain Line in the Near Future—How a La Salle Street Banker Interprets the Signs of the Times—Some of the Sales of the Week—How the Building Association Starts Infloat.

"The undertone of the market," said a La Salle street banker yesterday, "is the most encouraging I think we have experienced since 1873, and unless my judgment is very bad I think that within the coming month we will witness substantial results from it. If you will look about you will find that little or no attention is paid to inside property—never probably. Main street—and that purchasers are all standing on tiptoe looking toward the prospective acres lying just outside the city's confines. And they are interested ones, as the market is true, and you ought to testify. But we have not seen anything like the activity that will soon come to the market, not in the shape of a boom, but in good, substantial trades at proper figures. We are now offering and selling acres at one-half and less than the price paid for them just after the fire, and their value increases day by day as the actions surrounding them is improved, the more so within the city. At that time values were fictitious, and the result was disaster, but there is nothing of that sentimental character about the prices now asked, and in view of the large inquiry and the great interest in outlying tracts I believe there will be an enormous rush to that class of property this year for subdivision and improvement, and not speculation."

Owners of subdivisions in the direction of Normal Park, at which there are many, report an unprecedented movement to the end of last week. There is also much interest manifested in the question of drainage with an effort toward securing a system of gutters for the entire tract, which proves a benefit both for the present and future. The subdivisions have been platted to that end, and it is to be hoped that a system will be adopted that will secure an outlay of from $10,000 to $20,000.

The Chicago Real Estate Board passed a decided vote of sympathy during the week, saying the Board of Trade will have other associations and placing it in a position that will probably result in its removal and much to the advantage of the new organization. The Board has determined to erect a building commodious enough to accommodate all the business that may be presented to it, and it is certainly entitled to the credit of an enterprise and determination worthy the dignity of the calling.

THE BUILDING STATISTICS.

Another batch of annual total statistics has been issued from the office of the Building Department, and the prospect for the early settlement of liabilities is not bright. The annual totals have been given to the public, and the difficulty in formulating plans for a settlement of the existing difficulties has been overcome. The figures have reached the city, and it is said to-day that they will be brought before the Board of Public Works and the Board of Local Improvements, and it is expected that a proposition will be made to the Common Council. The totals show of the entries of the Building Department for the year 1868, and the estimates of which the Building Department is custodian, that the total number of buildings erected during the year was 2,192, and the total cost $6,000,000. The number of buildings erected in 1867 was 1,000, and the total cost $3,000,000. The number of buildings erected in 1866 was 1,000, and the total cost $3,000,000. The number of buildings erected in 1865 was 1,000, and the total cost $3,000,000. The number of buildings erected in

OUR OPENING. OUR OPENING.

Is it a success? We opened our doors at 9 a. m. At 9:15 we had a crowd; at half-past 9 a. m. and since 10 a. m. it has been as you see it now—a perfect deluge. What it will be this afternoon the Lord only knows.

Those are the exact words, as near as we can remember, which passed between a reporter of one of our dailies and a member of our firm at 1:30 p. m. Crowding our way through from one "rayon" to the other, and seeing the heads of the different departments we were met all over by smiling faces. To the question, How are they going? we received but one answer, and if from one man: Don't have to say a word; all we need is to mention the prices and the ladies say: "I'll take it." The Opening, as a whole, and the way the ladies are taking hold, is such a

Grand Success

That we have the utmost confidence in the fulfillment of the prophecy made in one of today's Chicago papers, which says: "This magnificent Bazar will undoubtedly become the great commercial mart of Chicago."

We shall work night and day, and leave no stone unturned to make ours the most popular trading place in the City of Chicago.

THE HUB

Yesterday was a field day at the Hub. Such throngs as surged and pushed and crowded and ebbed and flowed from early morn till late at night in every nook and corner of the Hub's large stores have never been known in Chicago before. Through the wide State-st. entrance two processions passed continually. From every point of the compass the crowds came, and to every quarter of the city they scattered, bearing with them bundles large and small.

WHY IS IT

That this never-ending flood of clothing-buyers rushes by the old moss-grown establishments a few blocks away to pour itself into the Hub's gates? It's no secret.

The Hub's Clothing Unsurpassed, the Hub's Prices Unparalleled, are the irresistible attractions.

Here are a few of the attractions that will surely guide the current all this week, and direct it again with unerring aim to the Hub.

First and foremost, a little something for the

G. A. R. Veterans This Week.

A Genuine Sisters' All-Wool, Full Indigo Blue Flannel Suit, with three warranties: First, that it's All Wool. Second, that it's Full Indigo. Third, that it can't be duplicated anywhere for less than $12. This suit the Hub will sell this week as a special attraction for $9. An extra set of G. A. R. Buttons with each suit.

Another sweet morsel for those seeking such for little. A Blue Flannel Suit also with three guarantees.

First, that it's NOT all wool. Second, that it's not full indigo. Third, that a suit as durable and serviceable can't be duplicated anywhere in Christendom for less than $5.

These the Hub this week will sell until they're all gone for $3.

Sweets for the Boys.

1,000 Boys' Suits, ages 4 to 14, of the finest fabrics, made up to sell none at less than $8 and many as high as $12. Of these the Hub now finds itself overstocked, and lumps them all to sell at $3. Not a suit in the lot but would be cheap at $7.

Also 500 Blue Flannel Sailor Suits, sold everywhere at $2 to $2.50.

These suits, just to show the little fellows that the Hub don't forget them in the general distribution of bargains, will be sold for 99c.

THE POST AT HIGHWOOD.

IT WILL BE QUITE CLEAR OF ALL ITS APPURTENANCES.

The Sightseers to Be Put Above to Camp at Once in the Legislative Lethe Outside—Gen. Black Sees Buildings to Cost Over $750,000 to $1,000,000 to Be Probably Erected—No Appropriation Yet Made by Congress.

Plans for the Highwood military camp were completed two days ago, but they have not been submitted to the Secretary of War for his approval. This will have to be done before Congress, to whom that the Secretary must render recommendations. It is not supposed that this, Chairman Outside of the post that is here now, and of all, it will probably be necessary to provide quarters for 1,000 men. The post will be in readiness by the time mid probably to some extent, and perhaps a school of artillery practice. The location of the Highwood tract is certainly good for the buildings, and the idea to have something at the end of every street. The plans for barracks are quite different, and for the commanding officer, and for the Lieutenant-Colonels, majors, captains, and others, barracks for the men, and so on.

It is said the first expedition among many of the cities that are to provide sites for the buildings and other post accommodations will be from $1,000,000. Precisely what is desired seems to not been fixed by Gen. Terry, but he intends to have a good set of plans made. But in the end the Secretary's statement project of making the Highwood post a first-class one is pretty sure to be carried out. Congress at the last session made an appropriation of $200,000 for permanent improvements of military posts. I have not longer not a portion of this sum ought to be used to begin work at Highwood. It is the duty of the Secretary of War to see to the erection of the buildings at the earliest practicable moment. Two of the members of the committee who called on Washington during the President's quick vacation in Virginia gave the following suggestion as to St. Louis hospitality:

"The President seems to be short of the pen and ink and paper habit. He writes as little as he can, and he is not much in the habit. He would like to see us, but I want to say that the people in our way." Keep in mind that the President is retired and taking occasions of actual rest.

Quaker City Soldiers to Follow the Example of Chicagoans—Off for the Southern.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 28.—[Special.]—There is a likelihood that the members of the Philadelphia National Guard will be converted to their Pittsburgh notions. If the National Guard of Philadelphia does not follow the example of the city of Chicago on account of the employment of non-union men they will be promptly disgraced by a unit. At a special meeting of the Pittsburgh Rifle Club, being the leading U. S. Infantry Battalion of the National Guard, Secretary of War Elkins was the idol of the hour. FRANCE HAS A MINISTRY.

A SUCCESS ACHIEVED AT THE VERY END AND LOSS BY SIX VOTES.

Gen. Boulanger Takes the Place of Gen. Boulanger as Minister of War—Other Members of the New Cabinet—A Popular Measure That the Combination Will Put Last Long—The Text of the Army Bill Being His Chief Plank—The Rule of War.

LONDON, May 29.—The Paris correspondent of the Times telegraphs that M. Rouvier has formed a Cabinet as follows:

M. Rouvier, President and Minister of Finance.
M. Flourens, Minister of Foreign Affairs.
M. Demole, Minister of Justice.
M. Fallières, Minister of the Interior and Public Worship.
Gen. Boulanger, Minister of War.
Admiral Jauréguiberry, Minister of Marine.
M. Develle, Minister of Agriculture.
M. Baïhaut, Minister of Public Works.
M. Lockroy, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs.
M. Barbey, Minister of Public Instruction.

The Cabinet is composed, the correspondent says, of moderate Republicans, or of the Left of the Left, and the assertion will be a test of whether moderate republicans, with a view of reaching agreement with the Right, with a view of their own security, have promised the new Ministry not to oppose it. The party of the Extreme Left has declared its hostility to the new Ministry, and the Ministry has expressed [illegible] Paris was to be kept in [illegible] Jacques, with the correspondent], "to enter [illegible] with the Ministry."

The Ministry will be essential for [illegible] to enable it to [illegible] Ministers to appear [illegible] and the next Right to [illegible] and prosperity."

The new Republican groups of the Chamber of Deputies have held meetings and unanimously approved their President's decision to call [illegible] to the exclusion of Freycinet and Ferry.

Why He Preferred Rouvier.

PARIS, May 29.—[New York Times Cable.] M. Freycinet, after trying for twenty-four hours to gather together some sort of a Ministry, finally informed M. Grévy yesterday that he must permanently decline the office. His friends state that the decision of the Republican party in the election of the successor to President Grévy was the principal cause of his refusal. The party, they assert, are anxious to have a Ministry which will be able to [illegible] the Republic party in the Chamber of Deputies, and they believe that M. Rouvier has been chosen by the majority of M. Grévy's friends because he is the strongest man to [illegible] the party. M. Rouvier, however, has declared that he will not accept the Premiership unless he is assured of the support of the Left Centre, which is the largest party in the Chamber of Deputies.

A Bold Step.

LONDON, May 29.—[New York Times Cable.] It is thought in Paris that Gen. Boulanger may still succeed in forming a Ministry in Paris. The step added importance to Gen. Boulanger, who forced the issue has taken a bold step in seeking to the power a responsible Ministry that he will support and which will be able to [illegible] Boulanger consents to become himself ready to accept a serious risk.

In the event of the completion of the new Cabinet the late Paris Bourse would open with the greatest rise in prices since the assassination of the President and the effect that the retirement of the present Ministry will have on public confidence and the value of [illegible] Boulanger consents to become himself ready to accept a serious risk.

Boulanger Will Wait.

LONDON, May 29.—[New York World Cable.]—Henri Rochefort says the new French Ministry cannot last but two years and that Boulanger will be triumphantly restored to power. He says that the Boulanger Ministry will be composed of Boulanger with the other Ministers in the background. M. Flourens, the new Foreign Minister, was formerly a friend of Boulanger, but they quarreled over the Tonkin war. The Republican party in France will, it is said, endeavor to overthrow the new Ministry because they have promised to be at peace with Germany. If the new Ministry can obtain a majority in the Chamber of Deputies against the Boulanger party, they will be assured for two years of peace and prosperity. The Republican party is said to be willing to support the new Ministry for the present, but they will not be [illegible] Boulanger party.

Gen. Boulanger Still Strong.

LONDON, May 29.—[New York Herald Cable.] Gen. Boulanger's position is considered stronger than ever. The Ministry is regarded as a mere cloak for Boulanger, who will be the real power behind the throne. The Ministry is composed entirely of Boulangists, with the exception of Admiral Jauréguiberry, who is a Republican. The Ministry will be strongly opposed to the anti-clerical party.

THE PARIS RIOTS.

The Prince Imperial Pardoned.

NEW YORK, May 29.—The Paris Figaro says Prince Napoleon Victor Jerome Frederic Bonaparte, heir to the throne of France, has been pardoned by the French Government. The Prince was banished from France in 1886 for refusing to take the oath of allegiance to the Republic. He is now twenty-one years of age.

Railway Station Burned.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 29.—[Special.]—The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy depot at Galena was destroyed by a spark from a locomotive last night and was entirely consumed. The engine, [illegible] was also burned. The engineer and fireman escaped with slight injuries. The loss on building, [illegible] will reach $5,000.

An Iowa Town Burned.

DES MOINES, Ia., May 29.—A fire this afternoon at Garrison, Poweshiek County, destroyed the greater part of the business portion. The fire originated in Duff & Perry's furniture establishment, probably by spontaneous combustion, and spread to both sides of the street, taking nearly every store. The loss above insurance is $75,000. Eight business houses.

A Suicide or Drowning Case.

PORT RICHMOND, L. I., May 29.—A man supposed to be a suicide or drowning case was found floating in the water off the foot of Broadway, this place, this morning. He was dressed in a dark suit of clothes, and had on a pair of rubber boots. He appeared to be about 40 years of age, and had a heavy dark mustache. He had a gold watch and chain, and a gold ring with a diamond setting on his finger. The initials "J. H." were engraved on the inside of the ring. The body was taken to the morgue.

CHICAGO, May 29.—[Special.]—Lyman, son of Joseph G. The young man had been passing a forged check, so it was alleged, for $100 on the Kansas City bank. The case was settled by the payment of the money by the father, and the young man was released. Upon his return to Farmington he was arrested on the charge of forgery preferred by his father. The young man is a graduate of Yale College, and was considered a young man of good habits. He is said to be under the influence of liquor when he committed the forgery.

INTERPRETERS OF LAWS.

BIOGRAPHIES OF THE JUDGES WHO SIT ON THE UNITED STATES BENCH.

The Men of Considerable Fame Who Have Sat Upon the Bench—Chief-Justice Marshall the Pioneer of the Able Men Who Have Adorned the High Position—English and Continental Lawyers Compelled to Recognize the Legal Learning of American Growing of Court Officers.

So it has long been the recognized usage that the President shall appoint the Judges from his own political party more than any other source for the seamen to the Supreme Court bench, and reputation attests as fairness to such a glimpse of Republican Party secretary.

The Supreme Court of the United States was organized in September, 1789, by the appointment of a Chief-Justice and five Associate Justices by Washington. In the ninety-eight years that have elapsed since that time seven Chief and forty-three Associate Justices have sat upon that bench. There is no supposed that a President has had the opportunity of completely changing the personnel complexion of the court—but under the administration of Lincoln. Of the Chief Justices, Washington appointed three, one of whom, John Rutledge, was not confirmed by the Senate. John Adams appointed John Marshall, after having first tendered the appointment to John Jay, who had been the first Chief Justice, and had resigned; Jackson appointed Roger B. Taney, who had been rejected by the Senate as an Associate Justice the year before; Lincoln appointed Salmon P. Chase, and Grant appointed Morrison R. Waite. Since the Chief Justiceship has been declined, four by William Cushing of Massachusetts, who was at the time an Associate Justice, to whom Washington offered the appointment of Chief on the rejection of Rutledge; and most by John Jay when offered by John Adams.

All the Presidents except Harrison, Taylor, and Filmore have had one or more of these appointments to make during their terms. Washington making the largest number, nine Chief Justices and one Associate, while Monroe in his eight years had but one vacancy to fill. The youngest Judge appointed was Joseph Story, who was 32, and the most youthful, William Johnson of South Carolina, who was 26 years old, when taking the position.

Chief-Justice Marshall and Mr. Justice Story each served forty-four years, Justice McLean and Wayne forty-three years each, Daniel Washington forty-two years, and William Johnson thirty years. The shortest time ever served was by Judge Rutledge, who was appointed in 1795, but whose nomination was rejected by the Senate. Though it is an old saying that Judges should be appointed for good character rather than for political services, the majority of them have been politicians of a more or less pronounced character. Marshall was a Federalist, Taney, Wayne, and Catron Democrats, Chase a Republican, and the remainder have been Democrats, but that fact has had little bearing on the appointments.

Although in England a seat upon the bench, and usually a very high one, is looked upon as the natural prerogative of an able barrister, of the forty-eight Associate Justices who have been appointed to the Supreme Court, Taney, Wayne and Curtis.

Another peculiarity of the Judges is that the Senate, for one reason and another, has only confirmed seven Chief-Justices and fifty-three Associate Justices, while it has rejected one Chief-Justice and five Associate Justices by Washington. In the eighty

AMONG SIBERIAN EXILES.

GRAPHIC PICTURE OF LIFE ON A PENAL ISLAND.

Where Political Offenders Are Sent to Live—Stories of Horrible Cruelties and Petty Affairs for Trifling Offenses—Women Who Share the Convicts' Misery—Life on the Bleak Island.

A Petersburg letter published recently in Geneva, 4,000 miles distant from Siberia, 3,000 miles distant from Moscow and 2,000 miles distant from St. Petersburg, the former capital of Russia, gives the latest advices from the Czar's dominions. They were mostly political letters, written by persons who had been arrested on charges of being agitators and had been sent to Siberia as exiles. Many of the letters were written by women who had been exiled to the penal island of Sakhalin, which, provided with coal mines, they were to convert into coaling depots for Russian steamers. Their destitute condition fortunately evoked sympathy in a country having republican institutions, and the contributions sent to them were numerous. The story of these exiles, from first to last, is a sad one. The Czar of Russia, the Empire of Eastern Siberia, a country of 4,000,000 square miles, and the Island of Sakhalin, are names which suggest a still further journey than the words of 4,000 miles, 4,000 of which were to be made in the most dreadful of modes, on the Siberian exile road—the journey on the ice—3,000 to take place on the great highway of the rivers, and the remaining 1,000 to be made on the penal island of the convicts. In the time between the arrival at Vladivostok, where he (one) first met exiles, and the departure from Sakhalin, I had many opportunities of seeing and hearing about the exiles, and of learning their history. The more I saw and heard of them the more I was convinced that the majority of them were innocent of any crime worthy of punishment, and that the punishment inflicted on them was a most cruel one. The more I saw of the system of exile, the more I was convinced that it was a relic of barbarism, and that it was a disgrace to the Russian Government that it should be allowed to exist in the nineteenth century.

The first thing that struck me on arriving at Vladivostok was the number of exiles who were to be seen in the streets. Every one I met seemed to be an exile. Some were working as laborers, others were hawking fish, vegetables, etc., from door to door, while others were to be seen in the shops. Many of the exiles were educated men, and I was told that a number of them were employed as clerks in the Government offices. Others were engaged as teachers in the schools, and I was told that a number of them were employed as doctors in the hospitals. Many of the exiles were married men, and their wives had followed them to Siberia. I was told that the wives of political exiles were allowed to accompany their husbands to Siberia, and that the Government provided them with free passages to Vladivostok. Many of the exiles had been sent to Siberia for life, and their wives had followed them voluntarily, in order to be with their husbands. Many of the exiles had been sent to Siberia for terms of years, and their wives had followed them voluntarily, in order to be with their husbands during the time of their exile

A BOARDING-HOUSE

IN PRISON OR IN PRISON WITH CARE OVERBOARD.

Difficulty of Securing an Acceptable Solution for a Reasonable Sum.--Comfort Easily Sole Inducement to "Rubber" --Strange Views of Boarding-House and the Characteristics of Proprietors and Inmates.--Boarding-House Masters--A Gentleman's Good Chance.

To be penitentiary Chicago probably possesses more boarding-houses than any other city in the world. To secure portions of the business, where so much the worst of the business exists, there are those scenes--those strong, almost--where one may pick out a house at random and feel certain to find in it a boarding-house and then not take the wager. On the North Side, in the section bounded by Clark street, Chicago avenue, and the lower portions of Lake and Grand streets and the river, particularly to the east. The interesting centre--that is to say, the Cosmopolitan reaching from east to west--is the most thoroughly settled by boat appointments. In these the boarding-house may be counted by scores of one, twenty, and forty, with scarcely a break. On the South Side Madison and Wabash avenues as far north as Twenty-second street are the southern streets most invaded by the interests of Gourmet humanity; beyond Twenty-second the field of professional humanity broadens out, and the array of boarding-houses scattered over an expanse of territory to the West Side Washington boulevard, as far west as the park, is the "fashionable" boarding-house district, after which suburban growth takes precedence. Several things fact in the streets running north and south are very locally apparent, though to most of them one is present not as being the "appointed for a longer stay than perhaps."

Some years of boarding-house life is enough to demonstrate to the student that the price at private dwelling-houses is the cheapest to a single person, a young couple, or a family with a servant. Again, to a certain degree, the tariff is proffered by the quality of the accommodations offered, the location of objects or the establishment supposed to be "fashionable"--however that may sometimes--certainly the environment of a Sprue. To discuss, it will be discovered by the patient by inquiry and observation that in each one of the two extremes that is not even out of the question to secure a boarding-house room with board for a single person for $3 per week, while in

The rowing contests at Putnam promise well from high motives, but there are but many members of Chicago who will go out to Lake Calumet expecting to witness great races. Powell and Hamlan are announced to row in the morning. Hamlan is the champion of England and is said to be very desirous that Powell should win, and this would undoubtedly be the case if they happen to pull together after a manner of the kind the gentlemen will have to be satisfied to be content a dark. Hamlan and Gaudaur are very good pulls. This is indisputable. They are, however, not at all even matched to that they ought to be good contests to row to a good performance. We are positive that Gaudaur is in no condition, as it is possible for a great performance. Hamlan's case is unknown. Some judges say he is not in condition and the race would be over before it got to go half. His weight is considerably under the championship rowing race. When it is remembered that he has been in great condition, he could outpull Gaudaur if there are such as Gaudaur's friends claim. Hamlan is not in condition, and he will be beaten by Gaudaur. Hamlan

In every one the knightly errant of the theatrical story does the young man triumphs of imagination who has just endeavored to return to the stage to old fashions and dignities. If that were Joe Jefferson's title with which to magnify his estimation of today, and who was knight for a more flattered fair, while Mrs. Bartram's return to us on the boards of the Grand Opera House will be the title to the name of the modern stage. GRAND OPENING THURSDAY

W. Siegel, Cooper & Co.'s fine store, Corner of State and Adams streets.

The saga of all nations fictured from the front of Siegel, Cooper & Co.'s magnificent granite store, at the southeast corner of State and Adams streets, yesterday and people of all classes and nations passed under them and into the great emporium, where, in a word, everything from a needle to a cross cut saw be purchased. The statement doesn't seem an exaggerated one, for a reporter entered the event into the store yesterday afternoon and enjoyed a sight-seeing. He may was there a beautiful display of useful and ornamental goods, but dressing and foliage plants filled up every inward corner, while over the stairway at the rear of the first floor was a magnificent engine copy of Meissonier's celebrated painting of "Friedland, 1807." The picture is the work of Messrs. Siegel, Cooper & Co., and reflects great credit upon their artistic ability. In addition to the picture, which occupied the rear of all, there was a beautiful arrangement with regard to the lights by which was the most effective work of the entire day, to Germans, Irish, Poles, Bohemians, and Swedes.

The main floor of the building which covers 100 feet on State street, and 175 on Adams, is devoted to all sorts of first class goods, jewelry, electric pieces, laces, parasols, ribbons, dress goods and dress trimmings; cloaks, under wear, hosiery, gloves, notions, fans, parasols, etc. The various counters are presided over by intelligent and courteous ladies and gentlemen, and every effort seemed to be put forth by the proprietors yesterday to make the public comfortable while in their store.

In the basement of the store is to be found all sorts of hardware, fancy china, crockery, hammocks, silverware, trunks, valises, parlor, kitchen and chamber furniture, and many groceries. If there is any article in general use not to be found upon one of these two floors of this great trading mart it would be difficult to mention it.

Owing to the delay in the building trade the proprietors were unable to complete the upper floors of the store in time for the opening, and these will be opened for inspection, etc., in a little later. The rooms for carpets, millinery, etc., in the course of a few months this remaining floor will be occupied as fast as the goods on the lower floors are completed and stock, passing gradually upward, until the entire building is filled with a magnificent display of goods. The store is lighted by electric lights, and has eight elevators in different apartments, while an entire second floor, extending the whole length of the building, is occupied by the engine of Siegel, Cooper & Co., which is the motive power for all the elevators, the electric lights, and the machinery in the basement. The engine is a 200-horse power, and is capable of rendering the public the best service.

Siegel, Cooper & Co. are well known to the business community of Chicago, and they will make a special effort to please all kinds of people on all kinds of goods, and their store is an ornament to the city. Mr. Siegel has for the years connected with the firm of F. Siegel & Son, proprietors of same, in this city and St. Louis, Cooper has been a resident of Chicago for many years, and is well known and respected for one of the largest dry goods houses in the city, and Mr. C. C. Cooper has had a long experience in the business, and is well qualified for one of the largest establishments of the kind, and is capable of rendering the public the best service.
